

PRESS RELEASE

June 9th, 2023. LONDON, UK. Restorativ, a Community Interest Company, is launching its operations and announcing a partnership with the Restorative Justice Council to bring Restorative Justice technology to the market.

Trillions have been invested in technologies to create relationships, it's time to invest in technologies that can help restore them. With that in mind, Restorativ is forming a strategic partnership with the Restorative Justice Council to provide next generation technology supporting Restorative Justice (RJ) solutions in the UK and beyond.

Dr Anamika Twyman-Ghoshal, one of the founders of Restorativ, described the company as “a social enterprise that is made up of academics and technologists.” She continued, “our mission is to bring the most up-to-date mobile solutions to market to help restore relationships, in all walks of life. In partnering with the RJC we are doing something very unique. We provide an accessible and affordable solution for RJ practices that are state or charity funded. Our solutions will also be sold to corporations that can afford to pay the full cost and will see significant benefits from adopting a restorative approach. ”

Jim Simon, CEO at the Restorative Justice Council, added, “providing new services and scaling our ability to support the RJ community needs a technological approach. Not only is Restorativ the next generation approach to RJ, it enables us to utilise important data to help evidence the many benefits of Restorative Justice and ultimately influence policy. This strategic partnership will bring significant benefits to the RJC, our members, and the wider restorative sector.”

“Restorativ is launching its mobile app, which includes embedded case management that focuses on the needs of thousands of RJ facilitators, who are often volunteers and need simple and effective mobile technology.” This partnership looks to the future by including a predictive assessment for measuring the most effective path to restoration and the ability to run virtual RJ sessions. “We are excited and committed to join Restorativ on this journey,” concluded Jim.

For more information contact: info@restorativ.co or enquiries@restorativejustice.org.uk

EDITOR NOTES

About Restorativ

Restorativ is a Community Interest Company that has combined academic knowledge with technology to create a tool that brings restorative justice into the 21st century. Restorativ allows its users to move away from punitive approaches and towards rebuilding relationships and communities. With a focus on profile-driven mobile technology and predictive assessments, Restorativ brings next generation social technology to the RJ world.

About Restorative Justice Council

The Restorative Justice Council (RJC) is an independent third sector membership body for the field of restorative practice supporting organisations and practitioners working across the restorative sector including those practicing within criminal justice, education, health, social care and workplace settings. It supports the restorative sector but leading the way in the setting of standards of practice and by providing its members a national voice for advocating the widespread use of all forms of restorative practice, including restorative justice. At the same time, the RJC raises public and political awareness and confidence in restorative processes.

The RJC's vision is of a society where high-quality restorative practice is available to all. Their aim of the RJC is to drive take-up and enable safe, high quality restorative practice to develop and thrive wherever conflict may arise.